

NEVADA'S ECONOMY NEEDS

NEVADA'S CONSTRUCTION WORKERS

According to a 2009 Report prepared by UNR for the Associated General Contractors (attached):

“2009 has been a tough year for most industries, but few have suffered as much as the construction trades.”

Yet even with this knowledge, Public Bodies, like the same University System which authored this report, continue to out source Nevada's construction jobs to out of state contractors who utilize out of state workers. Two jobs being performed at UNR currently were not even subject to competitive bidding, yet contractors from out of state were selected and tax dollars which should have been kept in Nevada to help improve Nevada's economy and reduce our states budget deficits are instead leaving the state and going into the economies in Utah, California and Arizona among other states.

The University system is not the only place such outsourcing of jobs is occurring see the reverses side of this flier for a partial list of projects in Northern Nevada which are draining millions of dollars out of our state's economy.

Enough is enough, it is time to tell State and Local Governments to assure Nevada workers and contractors work on Nevada projects, especially if those projects are receiving tax dollars, incentives, or are being paid for with Nevada rate payers dollars.
